

Leave Paradise in its Place

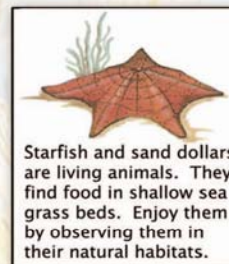

Endangered sea turtles use our beaches by digging nests and laying their eggs under the sand. Be careful where you place your beach items.

Pieces of coral and other marine life that wash up on the shore today, break down and help form the white sandy beaches of tomorrow. Please, do not remove anything other than trash from the beach.

Old Conch shells are hideouts for octopus and other sea creatures. Leave them as a shelter and haven for sea life.

Starfish and sand dollars are living animals. They find food in shallow sea grass beds. Enjoy them by observing them in their natural habitats.

Hermit crabs change their sea shell houses as they grow. Assure these creatures a home by leaving empty shells on the beaches and in our waters.

VINE

VIRGIN ISLANDS NETWORK OF ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATORS

